

Tooth Coloured (Porcelain) Crowns & Bridges

A Guide for Patients

Procera® AllCeram & Cercon® metal free Crown :- from £616^{per unit}

- Closest achievable to 'natural' tooth appearance
- Translucent coping offering truly remarkable aesthetic characteristics
- Unique material properties using latest computer 'CAD CAM' technology
- Natural beauty and optimal fit – ideal for all positions in the mouth
- Minimum of six shades of enamel and dentine powders
- Technician with considerable experience works exclusively on case from start to finish.
- Will usually include shade taking/photo at laboratory (at extra cost)
- Non-metal bio-compatible crown with sintered aluminium oxide core (Procera) or zirconium oxide (Cercon)
- Cercon more suited to long span bridges or crowns where biting forces are high

N.B. Need for full articulation where the bite is exceptionally difficult or incorporation of specialist attachments to attach bridges or chrome dentures to crown will usually (but not exclusively) fall into the Elite category.

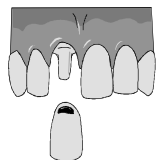

Elite (Enhanced) Crown:- from £452^{per unit}

- Mixture of enamel and dentine powders to produce enhanced aesthetics.
- Porcelain bonded to Precious Metal Alloy (grey) [not less than 33% fine gold, platinum & palladium] or yellow gold with Captek® Crowns.
- Will usually use porcelain butt margins (metal free), where technically possible to help to eliminate the very dark join that can appear between the edge of gum and crown.
- May require shade taking/photo at laboratory (extra fee will apply)
- Most commonly used on anterior (front) teeth for enhanced aesthetics

Custom (Basic) Crown:- from £348^{per unit}

- Basic shading taken from standard porcelain shade guide (in Surgery)
- Mixture of enamel and dentine powders to produce enhanced aesthetics.
- Porcelain bonded to Precious Metal Alloy (Grey) [Not less than 33% fine gold, platinum & palladium].
- Usually only suitable where aesthetics are not of prime concern i.e. posterior (back) teeth. (N.B. These are provided without compromise to fit, contacts or bite.)
